

XM Radio provides the traffic and weather information I need in my car, when I need it. No other broadcast medium provides the quality of traffic and weather service that I pay XM to provide me. Traditional AM and FM Radio broadcasters need to realize that there will be a day when their product like so many others will be made obsolete by technology. How long are we to protect those that fail to innovate? Send the NAB the message that the FCC will not bow down to deep pocket bullying.
